

FARMERS: MORE SCRAP IRON WANTED

2 New Lenox Boys Are In Trouble Again

Edward Verschules, age 17 and brother Arthur age 15 who were implicated in a series of robberies in New Lenox a few weeks ago and who were released on probation are again in trouble. This time Mrs. Emma Simmers of New Lenox preferred charges against them of breaking into the basement of her home.

The boys were taken into custody by probation officer Paul Ohman. Mrs. Simmers told officers that she observed the boys breaking into her basement and that they ran away when they saw her descending the stairs into the cellar. Deputies said the youths at first denied their implication but later admitted having broken into the place, denying however, that they had taken any thing. It is understood that one of the brothers has been committed to the St. Charles School for delinquent boys.

Mr. Mesenbrink is moving his family to Palos this week. His many friends in Tinley Park are sorry to see him leave, but wish him much success in his new location.

Mr. Mesenbrink expresses his appreciation to his many loyal customers and friends for their patronage of the past.

BUS SERVICE TO MOKENA DISCONTINUED

Lack of sufficient passengers to make it a paying proposition, has caused the Safety Transportation bus service to Mokena for the Elwood Ordnance Plant workers to be discontinued effective Nov. 24th.

Thru the efforts of the News-Bulletin the bus company was induced to extend its bus service to Mokena, but many of the ammunition workers did not patronize the bus, but drove their own cars with the result that the bus company decided that the few workers who did patronize the bus did not warrant the expense of operating the bus to Mokena from the Lincoln Highway.

TOTAL OF 550 A BOOKS ISSUED TO FRANKFORT AUTOISTS

Registration of gas was held on two days of last week in the Public school under the leadership of the principal Miss Viola Lankenau. Her helpers were Mrs. Henry Heuser, Miss Annette Kohlhaugen, Wm. Kampe, Frank Kohlhaugen, Henry Briedert, Mrs. Glenn Folkers and Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaugen. A total of 550 A books were registered. Miss Lankenau is very thankful for the cooperation she received from all who helped to make this duty of every citizen so successfully performed.

FINDS HUSBAND HAS ANOTHER WIFE SO SHE SEEKS DIVORCE

Dorsey L. Troutman, New Lenox was already married when he married Myrtle E. Troutman on Dec. 6, 1941 at Kahoka, Mo., the latter charged in a bill for divorce filed in Will County Circuit Court last Monday.

Mrs. Troutman said that she discovered in March of this year her husband allegedly already had a wife and she left him at that time. She has asked the court to allow her to resume her maiden name of Myrtle E. Doffara. Mrs. Troutman is represented by Attorney R. C. Schoenstedt.

FRANKFORT HOME BUREAU TO HOLD GIFT EXCHANGE

The Frankfort Unit of the Home Bureau met on Nov. 17 at the home of Mrs. Harold Schult with every member present. Special emphasis was put on the need to save grease to help win the war. The Major lesson on Menu Planning was given by Mrs. L. Kohl. The Minor lesson on Good Grooming, was given by Mrs. G. Abbe. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. L. Holm on Dec. 15. At this meeting there will be a pot luck dinner and Christmas gift exchange.

COFFEE WILL BE SOLD AGAIN ON SUN. NOV. 29

Beginning Sunday, Nov. 29 until Sunday, January 3, 1943, an eligible consumer may buy one pound of coffee on surrender of stamp No. 27 from Ration Book 1 which is the Sugar book. An eligible consumer is any person possessing a Ration Book 1 who was over 15 years of age at time of registration.

The one week freeze is to enable dealers to replenish their stocks but due to transportation difficulties this may be slow and dealers are advised not to sell at this time more than one pound to a family.

While each book of a family unit is allowed one pound those who buy more than one pound at a time are failing in their duty to our boys at the front and probably are among those who brought on coffee rationing by hoarding all they could buy is the past few months.

Those who because of surplus sugar did not receive ration books may secure same on application at the Board office.

TINLEY METHODIST CHURCH SUPPER DECEMBER 10.

Remember December 10. It is the date of the next Methodist supper. It will be a sauer kraut and potato supper. Time of serving will be 5 to 8 p. m.

To Dedicate Plaque Honoring Mokena Boys This Sunday

This coming Sunday afternoon will be an important one for Mokena when the Community flag and plaque will be dedicated. Both are located on the Rock Island depot grounds adjoining the old depot well.

Those who are to participate in the dedicatory program as well as the public are invited to meet at the Mokena school grounds at 2 p. m. Here a line of march will form and proceed to the depot grounds where the dedicatory program will be carried out under the auspices of the Wm. Martin Post, Mokena VFW.

The plaque contains the names and the branches of service they are in of all the young men of Mokena who have entered the armed forces. The plaque faces Front street and was erected last Sunday, by members of the VFW post. The public is cordially invited to attend this patriotic affair.

ORLAND ISSUES 557 A GAS BOOKS

Beatty Lmb Co. has donated a small top for the large table, so if you would like to help with some of the war work come out next Tuesday at 10 a. m.

Elizabeth Breck, Instructor

TO HOLD OGD CEREMONY AT HARVEY

First local ceremony of its kind will be the public induction which the Harvey Civilian Defense corps will hold on Sunday, Nov. 29.

At the function a class of nearly 200 members, those of all OGD departments who have been certified and have completed their basic training subjects, will be sworn in officially. The program will take place at 2:30 p. m. at the Whittier school.

Speaker of the day will be Col. Paul J. Armstrong, past commander of the state department of the American Legion and present director of the State Selective Service program. W. E. McVey will preside as chairman.

MANY MOKENA AUTO OWNERS ASK FOR ADDITIONAL GAS

In last week's registration for gas rationing at the Mokena public school 817 A books were issued and one D book for a motorcycle. The total registration was 318 which was 18 more than had been estimated would register.

A significant fact was that 90 per cent of the applicants requested blanks for additional allotments of gasoline but it is estimated that only 50 percent will actually make application.

The teachers of the Mokena school are to be commended for the efficient and courteous manner in which they handled the registration.

TOTAL OF 701 A BOOKS ISSUED IN NEW LENOX TWP.

The total registration in connection with the forthcoming gasoline rationing held in the New Lenox public school last week brought in a total of 701 applicants for the entire township for which A books were issued. A large per centage of the applicants asked for application blanks for additional gasoline supplies.

The teachers of the New Lenox school did a fine job and are to be commended for their good work.

Miss Hulda Hellmuth of Mokena Pretty Autumn Bride

Miss Hulda Hellmuth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hellmuth of Mokena, was united in marriage with Mr. Joseph Schmitz of Chicago, at nine o'clock Saturday evening (November 14, in Chicago.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a white wool street length dress, with a brown hat and brown accessories, and a shoulder corsage of white gardenias. A brother of the groom and his wife were the attendants.

The next day a wedding dinner and reception was held in the Hellmuth home in Mokena for the immediate family and relatives of the bridal couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmitz went to housekeeping in an apartment in Chicago. Mr. Schmitz left Tuesday for army service. Mrs. Schmitz is employed in Chicago.

FARMERS TO HOLD EVENING MEETINGS IN COOPERS GROVE SCHOOL

The school board of the Coopers Grove school have decided to make their school building available for a series of farmers evening school meetings. A farmers evening school has been held every winter in the Bloom Township high school at Chicago Heights for many years. Many farmers from this territory attended these meetings. This year because of transportation problems, the federal government has requested that some of the evening schools be conducted in the rural schools.

The evening school at the Coopers Grove school will be sponsored by the Agriculture department of the Bloom Township high school. John D. Rosenberg, new Agriculture instructor at Bloom, will teach the course. Mr. Rosenberg will bring many farm bulletins and books with him from Bloom.

Henry Henke, Fred Niemeyer and Alfred Schmaedeke met with Mr. Rosenberg Wednesday evening to plan the course. It was decided to hold the meetings on Tuesday evenings. The first meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, District 1 at 8 p. m. The board decided that most of the meetings would be spent in a discussion of pork production. Such topics of interest as "Making the Income Tax Report" and "Gas Rationing" will be taken up.

Because of the war the farmers problems have grown more and more difficult. Fencing materials, new machinery and many commercial feeds are impossible to get. It has become increasingly more difficult to obtain sufficient farm labor. In spite of all these factors the farmer has been called on to produce even more food than last year. The Farmers evening school can be of help in solving these problems thru group discussions and by bringing the latest agricultural information.

There are no charges for these classes and everyone is welcome. The Coopers Grove school is located 3 1-2 miles east of Tinley Park on the corner of Cicero and 183 Street.

1943 AUTO LICENSE APPLICATION BLANKS HAVE ARRIVED

Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes has issued the application blanks for the 1943 automobile licenses. In issuing the blanks he called the attention to motorists the request of the Office of Transportation that occupations of registrants be listed in the "Remarks" column.

The new plates are of fibre impregnated with plastics and have been laboratory tested for wear in variable conditions. Secretary Hughes stressed the fact that the plates should be placed in position on the individual car so that they would not be "bumpers."

HONORED WITH MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A group of about 30 friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Wm. G. Keuch, Tinley Park, November 19 to surprise Miss Marie Wille for a miscellaneous bridal shower.

The living room was prettily decorated in blue and gold, the bride's chosen colors. After all the lovely gifts were opened and admired, a delicious lunch was served. Co-hostesses were Florence, Ellinore, and Marion Keuch.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Knox of Orland Park announce the engagement of their daughter Eleanor Louise to Harold Winston Kay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kay of Orland Park. This is a happy culmination of a school boy and girl romance which has lasted for several years. Mr. Kay was inducted into military service last Friday and is now home on a two weeks furlough and will report for active duty on its expiration.

CHURCH OF ST. GEORGE IN TINLEY PARK SCENE OF PRETTY AUTUMN WEDDING

A very pretty rainbow wedding took place Saturday afternoon, Nov. 21, at 3:30 o'clock, in St. George Catholic church rectory in Tinley Park, uniting in marriage, Miss Mary Jane Cousineau and Sergeant Frederick Willman, Jr., of Tinley Park.

The bride wore a white slipper satin and lace gown with a lace edged finger tip veil and a pearl tiara. Her bouquet was of white sweet peas. The maid of honor, Miss Marion Rosenorn of Chicago, cousin of the bride, was gowned in pale pink and carried a bouquet of orchid sweet peas.

Miss June Willman, sister of the groom and Miss Velma Peters were bridesmaids. Miss Willman wore a pale yellow gown and Miss Peters, pale blue. Each carried a bouquet of mums and sweet peas.

Sergeant Willman was served by Raymond Mason as best man, and Bernard Andres was the usher.

A wedding reception was held at Neilson's, 78th and Western Ave., in Chicago in the evening for the immediate families.

Sgt. Willman reported back to camp to Lockbourne Air Base at Columbus, Ohio, Tuesday morning, in Chicago in the evening.

MISS MARIE WILLE BECOMES BRIDE OF CLARENCE SANGMEISTER OF PEOTONE

Miss Marie Wille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wille of Tinley Park became the bride of Mr. Clarence Sangmeister, son of Mrs. Clarence Sangmeister of Peotone, Sunday, November 22.

The ceremony took place in St. John's Lutheran church of Coopers Grove, the Rev. H. F. Meyer officiating. The church was prettily decorated with baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother Erwin, wore a beautiful white satin gown with a long train, and wore a lace trimmed finger tip veil. Her flowers were a cascade bouquet of white pom poms and sweet peas.

She was preceded by the flower girl Miss Evelyn Keuch, dressed in lovely pink taffeta and carried pom poms on a little blue muff. The ring bearer Elmer Keuch carried the ring on a white satin heart shaped pillow.

Her attendants were her sister, Miss Dorothy Wille as maid of honor, and Miss Lauretta Reimers, niece of the groom, who wore blue and gold moire taffeta gowns and carried cascades of rose and bronze pom poms on muffs of contrasting colors. They also wore flowers in their hair.

The groom was attended by Mr. Alvin Reils as best man and John A. Wille brother of the bride.

TOTAL OF 643 TINLEY AUTO OWNERS REGISTERED

TINLEY SOLDIER RETURNS
Sgt. Richard Mason who has been spending a furlough at home, returned to his camp in New Orleans, La. last week.

The government is urging the American farmers to gather up and bring in every ounce of scrap metal according to the following telegram to the Editor of The News-Bulletin received Wednesday morning from Donald M. Nelson:

Washington, D. C. Nov. 24, 1942
Editor Wm. Semmler,
News-Bulletin,
Mokena, Illinois.

The government is asking the American farmer to dedicate the remaining weeks of 1942 to an intensified scrap hunt. Steel mills need more heavy scrap and the farms are one of the best sources of this type of metal. We need your further help in this farm drive and in aiding our salvage committees to continue this effort throughout the next few weeks. Mats and other material to help you are being prepared and will be mailed soon. All salvage committees are being instructed to continue to make available to the farmer all their transportation facilities and manpower and to cooperate with you in every possible way. The nation is looking to the American farmer. I am sure with your help he will come through.

Surviving besides the parents are a brother Charles, Jr., the grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Emiley and a grand mother, Mrs. Thomas Pugh. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Edward F. Dames Funeral Home in Joliet with Rev. Nesmith officiating. Interment in Maplewood cemetery, New Lenox.

GAS RATIONING STARTS NEXT TUESDAY, DEC. 1st

If opposition to nation wide gas rationing fails, then next Tuesday, December 1st will see gas rationing go into effect.

This rationing will wreck many small businesses and put many men out of work. If farmers cannot get extra gas rations it is doubtful if auction sales will be held this winter.

Chile Sitting on the Fence

By Waldo Frank

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

There are nearly 80,000 pro-Nazi Germans in Chile; 30,000 are German nationals; 50,000 are Chilean citizens of German descent who have been hypnotized, despite their democratic antecedents, by the victories of the fuhrer.

There is a drama here. To see it and Chile's importance within the Pan-American picture, we must have a sense of the Chilean people.

The Chilean is half mariner, half mountaineer. He lives in a land whose geography a famous Chilean writer has called "insane." Chile is 2,000 miles long and about 100 miles wide, shaped like an earthworm. One side of it is sea, the other ice and rock. In square miles, it is larger than France, but a bare ten per cent of its soil is cultivable, the rest being desert, mountain and poor sheep pasture. That's not the worst of it. Chile is the land of earthquakes. Every Chilean remembers "his earthquake." He may be fifty, and the frightful experience may have shaken his body when he was six, but his soul cannot forget.

Havoc of an Earthquake.

I visited Concepcion, the country's third city, where, only three years ago, a quake in 90 seconds destroyed thousands of lives and shattered hundreds of houses. The ruins are there still—the cathedral, the dwellings, the commercial structures; and on and about them Concepcion moves, disorganized and dazed, like a city bombed by an enemy which the people cannot have the satisfaction of hating.

All this has made the Chileans slow, reticent, stubborn, intellectually matter-of-fact; a people of depth and will, rather than surface sensibility and color; a long-suffering folk whose noble music is almost buried in their hearts, as different from their charming and brilliant neighbors across the Andes as their rocky land is different from the Pampa.

Chile Advanced Politically.

Politically, Chile is the most advanced nation of South America. Its industrial workers are all unionized, every Chilean belongs to a political party, and the elections are honest. The two largest parties are the Radicals (corresponding to the Liberals in this country) and the Conservatives (like our die-hard Republicans). Socialists and Communists are highly respected, important minorities with representatives in the ministry and congress. Yet this sturdy, conscious folk (with the exception of Uruguay, the most homogeneous in all South America) remains economically poor and exploited.

So hard has been the life of the Chilean worker, so hard the soil, so uncertain even the survival of his house when his earth quakes, that when he gets a bit of money, he doesn't—like the American—buy goods; he buys rest. Poor food, ragged clothes, a hovel of a house, he has got used to. What he wants is a week off, with plenty of wine to remove him from his troubles. The average labor-year of the fully employed, skilled Chilean industrial worker is 39 weeks.

The people are democratic from top to bottom. An example: The new minister of health, Dr. Miguel Etchebarne, still works as a subordinate of Dr. Orrego who, officially, is under him. At 8 a. m., the minister takes orders from Orrego in the State hospital; at 11 a. m., in his ministry, he gives orders to Orrego.

Another instance is the Church. Everywhere, there are good Catholic Democrats. In Chile alone, as far as I know, there is an organized Catholic Democratic party which works with Radicals, Socialists and Communists against the Fascist danger. Schnake, the minister of labor, is of this party.

Not far from Valdivia, heart of German Chile, in the village of San Jose de la Mariquina, lives the noblest of the country's anti-Nazis, a bishop and a full-blooded German! I went to see Guido Benedict Beck de Ramberg, Capuchin bishop. He told me of his fight against his fellow Germans and Chileans of German descent, who send him threatening letters.

The Nazis have one great virtue: They know their enemies and fight them. The Gestapo in Germany warned him of reprisals if he did not stop publishing his anti-Fascist literature. The magazines and pamphlets kept on flowing from the bishop's print shop.

This brings me back to the Nazi embassy in Chile. A few weeks ago, Minister of the Interior Morales made a speech forecasting an early break with the Axis. The Axis embassies got busy on the cables, and Morales cracked down, refusing to pass their messages.

Washington, D. C.

BRAZIL AND U. S. OFFENSIVE

Though the landings on North Africa were a carefully guarded military secret between high British and American officials, one other country let in on the secret was Brazil.

In fact, Brazil, through Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha did some important spadework for the United States in regard to vital Atlantic islands, the Azores and Madeiras. These lie along the route of the American supply line to North Africa, the Madeiras close to the African coast.

Therefore, it was considered possible that the Germans might attempt to use these islands as submarine or even air bases, or that the United States in turn might need the islands for emergency bases.

Both island groups are Portuguese. So, long ago, Brazil, which looks to Portugal as its mother country, made informal diplomatic soundings to make sure that these islands would line up with the United Nations in case of emergency.

SOLOMONS vs. AFRICA

One thing that got under the skin of high U. S. army officials during the weeks just before the North African landings was the navy's policy regarding the battle of the Solomon Islands.

Though all the details had not been worked out, it had been definitely agreed with Churchill and the Russians to start some kind of second front operation this summer. However, the navy also claimed that it could start the Solomon Islands campaign simultaneously without taking any ships out of the Atlantic or disturbing the Second Front preparations. The admirals promised the war department that the number of ships used in the Solomons would be very small indeed.

But before the Solomons operations had lasted many weeks, the navy had used several times as many ships as it expected—some of them sent to the bottom of the Pacific. Ships were taken off the supply lines to Russia, despite definite promises made to Russia. Ships were also taken off the supply lines to England to such an extent that supplies to England dwindled to a dribble.

LESSON FROM ALEUTIANS

Inside the navy it is pointed out that one of the best jobs Admiral Nimitz ever did was to let the Japs get into the tip end of the Aleutian islands. This proved to be a beautiful decoy, like flies to molasses. The Aleutians were too exposed for the Japs to defend safely, too near our bases.

As a result, the Japs lost 10 destroyers—a big chunk out of any navy—and we are continuing to whittle them down with no loss to ourselves. U. S. bases are now so close to Kiska that U. S. planes bomb the Japs every day without fail—and bomb them so badly that recently no Jap fighter planes have been put in the air. Apparently they are all smashed.

But in the other end of the Pacific, army strategists fear that we may have got ourselves in the same position as the Japs have in the Aleutians—with our necks so far stuck out that, despite current successes, we have lost more ships than the Solomons were worth.

CHRISTMAS TRAVEL

The railroads have been negotiating with the schools and colleges to extend their Christmas holiday period so that it will begin before the usual Christmas home-going dates and extend beyond the usual returning dates. The purpose was to get rid of the school and college traffic before taking on the burden of the furlough movement of soldiers, going home for Christmas.

This longer vacation would be okay with a lot of girls and boys, but most of the schools and colleges have turned thumbs down. They said they could not change their schedules.

Result is that the American railroads will carry the greatest burden in history during the period from December 15 to January 5. The peak will come between December 20 and 24, when the railroads will have to carry:

(1) Home-going students; (2) the usual heavy civilian Christmas travel; (3) soldiers on furlough; (4) soldiers on week-end passes; (5) the normal troop movement, which will not be suspended for Christmas.

So between December 15 and January 5, civilians are asked to stay off the railroads!

AFRICANA

Frenchmen listening to Roosevelt's broadcast to the French people in the French language wondered who wrote his speech. They said it contained grammatical errors and sounded like schoolboy composition. Roosevelt's accent, however, was good.

General Giraud, new French commander in North Africa, is the first Frenchman to use motorized units in cleaning up North Africa. He waged a successful campaign against the Riffs.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

THE Secret OF THE MARSHBANKS

• BY KATHLEEN NORRIS •

©NORRIS W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven, knows almost nothing of her early history. Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell are her guardians and when she is twenty, Emma gets her a secretarial job with Mrs. Porter in San Francisco, for whom Emma is housekeeper. At the Marshbanks mansion she meets the judge's dictatorial old mother; Amy, rich debutante daughter of his dead brother, Fred; and Fran, his gay young second wife. Emma tells Cherry that her unmarried sister Charlotte was Cherry's mother and she learns from the judge that Amy's father was also her father. Kelly Coates, a young artist, takes Cherry along so Fran will visit his studio. Cherry can see he is very much in love with Fran and is jealous. Mrs. Porter dies and Cherry goes to Stanford University, living with the Pringles at Palo Alto. Fran tells Cherry she has decided to do the honorable thing and see Kelly no more. Soon afterward he asks Cherry to marry him, although Fran will always be the "unattainable woman." Her answer is no; she wants no Fran in the background. Emma tells Cherry that she is not Charlotte Rawlings but Amy Marshbanks, her sister having secretly exchanged the babies. Judge Marshbanks confirms this, saying he has a statement Fred swore to on his deathbed. His mother, unobserved in a deep chair, overhears this, seizes the papers and throws them into the grate fire. Amy, twenty-one in a few days, is going to marry Count Gogo Constantino. Kelly calls to see Cherry and congratulates her on being Amy Marshbanks. Cherry is happy when Kelly says he hasn't seen Fran in weeks.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XIV

"I never guessed it because it isn't true," Amy answered, in proud distaste.

"It is true, my child. Your father was a fascinating man. Women were drawn to him."

"Cherry and I are the same age," Amy protested. "He was married. I don't—of course, I don't believe it!"

"Cherry was born two months too soon. Her mother was Charlotte Rawlings, the younger sister of Emma Haskell, who was your grandfather's nurse for years—my housekeeper after that . . ."

"You are not hurting me," Cherry said steadily, interrupting. "You are talking of Amy's mother."

Amy turned to Cherry, pathetic and bewildered. "What is all this, Cherry? What's she talking about? I think my grandmother's losing her mind. What's it all about?"

"I saw Emma a few weeks ago, up in the mountains," Cherry began, speaking in a voice suddenly hoarse and weak. "She told me that—that there had been a mistake in—in you and me—in our identities, Amy, when we were just newborn babies . . ."

"Of which there is absolutely no proof!" put in the old lady harshly.

"There was proof. Judge Marshbanks will tell Amy so if she asks him," Cherry was beginning, when Amy interrupted again in her turn:

"You mean I'm not Amy Marshbanks, and my father's and mother's child and Grandfather Wellington's grandchild? But that's so idiotic."

"You are right, Amy," said Mrs. Marshbanks, more quietly than she had yet spoken. "You are absolutely right, my darling, and I am proud of you. And now, girls, no more of it. It's late, and I am going to bed. Good night, Amy."

"What do you suppose got her?" Amy asked in a whisper when they were in the hall. "She gets the most crack-brained ideas! Come into my room, Cherry. No, come on in a minute. Is any of that true? Was my father really your father, too?"

"Emma says so," Cherry admitted, sick of the whole thing.

"Uncle say so?"

"Yes. Yes. He told me long ago. When I was here after Mrs. Porter died."

"Honest?" Amy asked, between a smile and a frown. And Cherry could see that she was not wholly displeased with the idea. "So Emma and my father—" mused Amy, a deep dimple appearing in her flawless little cheek.

"Not Emma. Emma's younger sister, Charlotte. She was only nineteen. She was just out of boarding school."

"That makes us cousins, doesn't it?" Amy asked, still marveling at the strangeness of it. "No, it doesn't," she corrected it quickly, "it makes us half sisters!"

Cherry was standing looking at the other girl steadily. "I think I'll go to bed, Amy. I'm terribly tired." She went to her room and began slowly to undress.

Before she fell asleep she heard Fran and the judge come in, and Amy's voice in the hall: "Uncle Jud, could I speak to you a minute?"

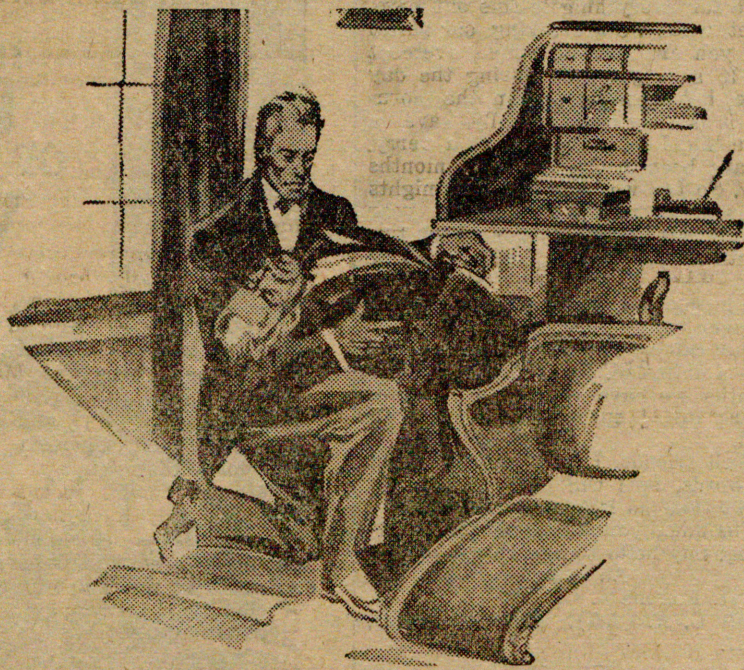

"Tonight?" said the judge's pleasant voice in answer.

"If I could, Uncle!"

"All right, trot down to the library, there's a fire there," Cherry heard him say, and then Fran's voice, "If it's that comic-opera count, Jud, be firm with her!"

He followed Amy down, and there was silence abovestairs. Cherry nervously excited, got into bed, intending to wait until Amy came up, and to gather, if she could from Amy's manner how the conference had gone. But she was too sleepy. Long before the light in the hall went out she was deep in dreams.

They were troubled dreams.

When Cherry reached the door, Martin was on his knees, and the body of his master shot through the heart was resting against his shoulder.

Someone was in danger. A hoarse voice called out, "Help, help, help!" Cherry sat up in bed, terrified at darkness, sweat suddenly cold on her hands and spine and brow. What was it? Somebody had called "Help!"

A shout came from the floor below, and then the sound of a revolver shot clove the darkness sharply.

Cherry was at the door now. The hall lights rushed up and the light over the stairs. Amy was at the switch, pallid with fright; stout, sturdy Molly, with May and some of the other maids behind her, was running down from the upper floor. Fran, clinging to the banister, was on the stairs.

"What was that?" Fran said, in a quick quiet voice. "Let's not lose our heads. It was nothing."

They all ran downstairs after Fran. Old Martin, the butler, was in the lead and they saw him pause at the library door. "They've got him!" he said brokenly.

When Cherry reached the door, Martin was on his knees, and the body of his master, shot through the heart, was resting limply against his shoulder.

Days went by. There was a dreadful silence in the house; a feeling of emptiness, even though it was filled with people. Old Mrs. Marshbanks murmuring to Fran in Fran's room; Amy tearful and frightened in hers; Cherry coming and going with a colorless, shocked face; Gregory Marshbanks, tall and good-looking and serious, home from college; Molly and May, the two upstairs servants. Helene the maid, the Chinese cook and his helper, Martin the butler, Rousseau the chauffeur, these were all there.

And besides these were officers of the law who had opened doors and blocked boxes, taken their posts gravely and regularly at the entrances, checking everyone who went out and in.

Judge Marshbanks had fallen back across his own chair, had slipped to the floor; it had been his voice they had first heard, shouting for help; Cherry recognized it as she remembered that dreadful sound in the silent night.

Since then the place had been in full possession of the authorities. The family, the servants were being eternally summoned for questions.

Fran had repeated to everyone's satisfaction her simple story. She had come home from a Burlington party with her husband at about midnight. She had felt restless and headachy that evening, and Judge Marshbanks, who always was glad to get home at a reasonable hour, had been delighted to bring her back before the party was well under way.

The judge, her story went on, had gone into the library for a talk with his niece, Amy Marshbanks, and Fran had gone to bed. She had heard nothing until his dreadful cry of "Help!" had rung through the house.

Amy was a poor witness in her own behalf, crying bitterly, and breaking out with frightened self-defense with every word. She had asked Uncle Jud to talk to her that night—no, she wouldn't say about what—no, he hadn't gotten angry at her nor she at him—yes, it had agitated her a good deal—she had cried—yes, she had said, "Then I'll kill myself!" as Martin testified. But Martin, going about to put out the lights, knew that she had gone upstairs before he spoke to Uncle, before Uncle said to him, "I've a little business to finish here, Martin. I'll put out the lights!"

"Had the announcement of your prospective marriage anything to do with this conversation, Miss Marshbanks?" Amy had been asked. "Not exactly," Amy was twenty-one now, and society had been duly notified, through the press, of her intention to become the third Countess Constantino.

On the other hand, the murdered man's mother had proved an incomparable witness. She had answered questions thoughtfully, evenly, not wincing away from even the most appalling details.

"Who killed Judson Marshbanks?" headlined the newspapers. Everyone speculated, and everyone's guess seemed as reasonable as that of everyone else's.

"Cherry, you must have a theory," Kelly said one day when they were climbing the hill at Sausalito behind Topcote.

"I have about four," she answered judiciously. "And Amy would add one to that. She has strong suspicions of you."

"Interesting," commented Kelly.

"But after all, she may have no more than four," pursued Cherry, "for one of my four is Amy herself. Oh, I don't really think she had anything to do with it!" she interrupted his quick, surprised look. "But she had a motive. She knew that Uncle Jud was the only person who could really do anything about this question of her identity and mine. She was frightened—about the shame of it, and the money, of course, and above all, about Gogo. Amy knew in her heart that Gogo would leave her flat if anything like that came out."

"Do Amy," Kelly said, in a mildly pleased tone, "suspects me?"

"I don't say she suspects you. But she knows you liked Fran, and that you were there that night, and she asked me the other day if I thought by any chance you and Uncle Jud could have had a quarrel."

"Ha! I wonder if she suspects Gogo?"

"She was in perfect terror until he'd been cleared."

"Amy acts like a person completely innocent."

"She does, but at the same time she and the old lady are hiding what did actually go on that night, what the discussions and quarrels were about, and I marvel sometimes that they, the police, don't smell a rat!"

"There's Fran," Kelly said thoughtfully, stuffing his pipe.

"Oh, she wouldn't! Who was she telephoning to that night, Kelly?"

"Any one of a dozen men. Men fall for her the way soft coal goes into basements."

A few moments later, they returned to the house. Cherry pulled on her hat and handed Kelly her coat to hold for her. "I hate to go back!" she said.

Kelly adjusted the collar in back, square her about with his big hands on her shoulders and carefully buttoned her coat.

"You don't have to go back, you know," he said, after a moment in which he had cleared his throat.

"It would be so good," she said, her raised face close to his, "to be long here. Just peaceful days and meals and digging in the garden and climbing the hill!"

"Why don't you do it, Cherry?"

"Because from the very beginning, Kelly, from the time I first knew you, I've known you didn't love me. And if I ever came here," Cherry said, "I'd want you to be so mad about me that you could hardly bear it. I'd want you to feel that marriage—marriage between us—was a miracle, and that if ever we had a child it would be a miracle to you, too, just as it would be to me!"

"And suppose I said that it was that way with me, Cherry," the man answered, catching her lightly by the upper arms with both big hands, holding her face to face with him. "Suppose I told you, on my sacred oath, that for weeks, months, I didn't know what was the matter with me, and that after you went away this summer it came to me suddenly that it was you—that it's been you for a long time. What would you say then, Marchioness?"

"I'd say—" she stammered, "don't—don't fool me, Kelly."

"Cherry," he asked, and now she was crushed so tight against his heart that she could not find breath to answer, "will you marry me, darling? Will you change my whole life for me, and make it the most wonderful life that any man ever had in this world? Will you, Marchioness?"

After a while he had to take her home. For even with the most expeditious plans in the world, they had to wait until such time as they could drive to San Rafael for a marriage license, and Cherry had to obtain permission from the authorities to leave the Marshbanks house.

Best to Train Bull When It's Still Young

Age of Two Weeks Not Too Early to Begin

Are you afraid of bulls? Prof. Raymond Albrectson of the New York State college of agriculture has the handling of a herd sire down to a science.

A bull can't talk intelligibly, but he still has sense and feelings, according to Professor Albrectson who gives the following advice about handling these masters of the cow family.

The bull is a creature of habit and early training can establish desirable traits. Teach a bull calf how to behave in public at an early age. A two-week old bull calf is not too young to be taught good behavior.

At six or eight months bull training is almost impossible. First teach the bull to lead at your side. Do not let him trail behind four or five feet. A bull with a running start has made many trainers the undignified part of an uplift movement. Do not let him get his head down or get in front of you.

Be firm, but not harsh. Make the lessons alike so that the bull won't need to remember too many things. Make leading a habit.

At eight months old insert a light ring in the bull's nose. Let the nose heal before educating the bull to lead with the ring. Keep the halter on him in the early stages of ring training, then teach him to lead on a staff.

Teach the bull to offer his ring by rewarding him with an apple, carrot or any tidbit he likes. When handling his ring do it firmly but avoid harsh handling unless the bull is very headstrong.

Professor Albrectson's final advice is that the best way to handle a mature bull is—very little.

Special Roosts Train Chickens

It doesn't take long to get chicks started on the roost, if roosts are built on frames with cross pieces made of lath. These frames at first are placed on the floor. They are only two inches high and the chicks go on them at once. After a few nights they are suspended from the ceiling by wires and lifted a few inches off the floor. To steady the frame one edge can be placed against the side of the building. The roosts are lifted gradually until the desired height is reached.

Dried foods, called dehydrated by the highbrows—are coming to the fore. Their advantages for both storage and transportation are greatly reduced bulk and weight.

Where wheat is being held in emergency storage, floor joints should be examined to make sure they can carry the load. Wheat is 10 times heavier than an equal volume of loose hay.

A BATTERED side chair, a scrap of plywood, part of a can of flat paint, and a can of delphinium blue enamel; a piece of blue and white ticking and a strip of coarse white material that was raveled out to make narrow fringe. Combined, these odds and ends made an attractive chair.

The old chipped white enamel was rubbed with coarse and then fine sandpaper until smooth. The new seat came next; then flat paint which was allowed to dry 24 hours before applying enamel. Next, the cover was made with a straight two-inch fringe trimmed band and ties around the uprights of the back.

ORLAND PARK

The following officers were elected at the meeting of the Adult Bible class of the Methodist church held Nov. 11th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cooper: President, Laura Cooper; Vice-President, Ruth Morlock; Secretary, Elsie Cooper; Treasurer, Frank Sayers and Sunday School Teacher, Iva Hanson.

The committee consisting of Chas. and Tom Cooper reported that a new gas range had been purchased and was already installed in the parsonage.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Morlock, Mrs. L. Love and Mrs. S. S. Knox.

The next meeting will be held in the parsonage Dec. 9th and opportunity will be given to try out the new stove.

Gordon Doctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Doctor who has passed his examinations both mental and physical for the Army Air Corps, has been sworn into service and is now at home awaiting assignment to active duty.

The PTA of the Yunker school, District 134 will hold a box social in the school Tuesday evening, Dec. 8. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance as the proceeds from the boxes will be used to provide a Christmas party for the children of the school.

The "Open House" meeting of the Parent-Teacher Council of the South west Suburbs of Cook County held at Midlothian Nov. 17 was attended by representatives of 7 of the 11 council units and by a number of guests and friends. Mrs. Theodore Gleichman of Moline, State President of Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers was the speaker and talked on the "Policies of the PTA". In the absence of Mrs. K. Padley of Midlothian, Council Program chairman, she was introduced by Mrs. Wm. Vogwill, Council President. Mrs. Floyd Tucker of Argo-Summit and Mrs. A. C. Jern of Oak Lawn, Director and Assistant Director of District No. 19 and Mrs. David More, President of the Midlothian Unit were introduced. Mrs. More on behalf of the unit welcomed the members and guests. Miss Clorinda Schmoll sang two solos and a very entertaining skit called "Pokeyhunt-us" was presented by the members. Refreshments were served by the members of the Midlothian PTA.

Orland was represented by its President, Mrs. S. S. Knox, Mrs. Olin Ellwood and Mrs. Edw. Manning. District 134 was represented by its president, Mrs. Harry Anderson, and Mrs. Sigmond Smith.

As part of the drive to provide a suitable reserve blood bank for war time use, the Mobile Unit of the American Red Cross will be at the Palos Park Village Hall December 5th from 10 a. m., to 3 p. m. People of the Orland Park community who wish to donate blood for this purpose should communicate at once with Mrs. S. S. Knox, phone Orland 100W and give the time at which they can appear before the unit. Notice will be sent to them either by mail or phone from the Red Cross staff just when to appear. Blood may be accepted only from those, made and female, between the ages of 18 and 60 years. They must not have a cold or be suffering from tuberculosis.

The need for blood for our fighting forces is urgent—our boys are offering all of theirs—surely you healthy stay-at-home Americans can offer a pint of yours.

The ladies of the Methodist church served about 300 guests at their turkey supper last Wednesday evening. Many thanks go to the donors of the turkeys, James, Bob and Mrs. Thos. Davidson. The proceeds of this supper are to purchase colored glass for the windows of the church.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service will hold their monthly meeting Thursday, December 3rd instead of the regular date which is Thanksgiving Day. All members are urged to attend the annual election of officers will take place.

Laurel Camp No. 1796 RNA met last Thursday evening in the Legion Hall with Edna Doctor, Oracle presiding. The next regular meeting will be held December 17th in the Legion Hall instead of the regular date which is Christmas Eve. This meeting will be pot luck Christmas Party and each member is to bring a gift valued at 25 cents for the gift exchange bag. Every member is urged to attend as the annual election of officers will take place at this meeting.

Bunco was played and refreshments were served by Esther Conover, Ruth Morlock and Lucille Ricketts.

The RNA Juveniles will hold their regular meeting and Christmas party December 17th at the home of their Director, Mrs. Christina Rust. This will also be a pot luck affair and a gift exchange. Meeting to start at the close of the school hour.

The Red Cross Sewing Class will meet for an all day session next Wednesday, December 2nd at the home of Mrs. Ralph Town. Lunches will be served at noon. Any lady in the community who sews or knits is cordially invited to attend and join the class.

CARD OF THANKS

We sincerely thank our relatives, neighbors and friends for the sympathy and kindness shown us in the death of our beloved wife and mother; we also thank Rev. Sanders for his comforting message, the singers, the pianist and all who sent flowers and lent their cars.

FRANK G. COOPER AND FAMILY

Why Rationing Is Necessary

Winning the war is the greatest occupation of our lives today—our very lives and the well being of all of us depends on victory. There is no need for me to dwell further upon this point. Rationing is essential in the war effort. Price control is essential for the preservation of our economic security. Rationing is comparatively new and it touches, directly or indirectly, the life of every family or individual.

First of all, we must realize that rationing is a community plan. It is a plan of distribution for scarce and necessary goods. Goods must be distributed to the best advantage for a nation at war. Money is not a measure of purchasing power. The real measure is the need and social usefulness—these factors alone decide who shall receive scarce articles and

PILE SUFFERERS!

I suffered for years with pile and fistula. I will tell you how I was healed. Just send stamped envelope. Herman Bergman, P. O. Box 56, Chicago, Ill.

in what amounts. This program guarantees that every resource will be put to the best and maximum use.

Every available resource must be devoted, primarily, to the building and fabrication of war materials. Little time is left over to manufacture for consumer needs, certainly no time is left to be devoted to non-essential consumer whims.

Rationing provides every individual and the family with an equitable share of the goods available. Bidding against one another is eliminated. There is no worry that others are receiving a more favorable share of merchandise. This procedure protects your family's pocketbook. Even more than that, this program protects the health and welfare of the family.

A few months ago sugar rationing was instituted all over the country. You have lived with this plan, you know of your own personal knowledge that it has worked out best for you and for the nation. The price has been stabilized and every one has been given his fair share of the amount offered for sale.

Another item that has been placed in the rationing program is rubber. Here again, all of us know the necessity of rubber in the construction of the implements of war. We know that the supply has been drastically curtailed.

Again the community plan has been effective. Rubber has been conserved. The war needs are being met and, in addition, the essential needs of the civilian population are being supplied.

You can well imagine what might have happened without a rationing plan on rubber. With money the sole measure, the prices would have mounted higher and still higher. Instead of necessity being the ruling factor, wealth would have entered the picture viciously. We could not have had an all out effort against our enemies.

Gasoline is being rationed to further conserve rubber. Again the guarantee that our armed forces will be supplied, again the guarantee that every civilian will share alike in his essential needs. This is a democracy. This is aiding in the war effort.

Wrapping Xmas Gifts Important

Wrapping of Christmas presents is one holiday task that won't worry servicemen here this year. The USO is inaugurating a complete gift wrapping service, free to all men in uniform.

Beginning Saturday, Nov. 21 special wrapping counters, stocked with Christmas papers, tags, seals, ribbons and boxes, plus heavy "outside" wrapping paper, twine, labels, etc., will be set up in each clubhouse. Volunteers, trained in the technique of gift wrapping and in the rules and regulations governing Christmas packages, will be on hand to meet the requests of servicemen. Personal shoppers will be available both in the Chicago and north shore area clubs, to purchase gifts for men who do not have time to shop.

This service is being started early this year because servicemen are subject to sudden transfers and have requested a means whereby they can purchase and mail their gifts early. Curtailment of railroad service has also necessitated advanced mailing dates in order that Christmas packages reach their destination on time. Chicago's postmaster has asked that all Christmas parcels be mailed by December 5.

Here are some tips on cleaning your lamp shades...to make them look new and bright

American housewives, restricted by scarcities and more interested in putting extra cash into War Bonds, are making old things about the house do double duty. There was a time when a dirty lamp shade meant a trip to the store for a new one, but now the picture is changed. Modern American housewives now look for a way to repair and renew the nice things they have, to keep their homes bright and shining at minimum expense.

One direct way to a bright, cozy home is to have clean lamp shades. Read these easy rules on cleaning them up safely, as recommended by our Home Lighting Advisors.

FIRST: Most fabric shades which are sewed are washable. Shades which are glued on, painted or made with materials that shrink when wet are not washable. Shades which are held with glue can be dry cleaned.

SECOND: Before washing remove all loose dust with a soft brush, and tie a cord on the wire at the top long enough for hanging the shade. Then make a sudsy solution of warm water and completely dissolved mild soap flakes. If the top or bottom is especially soiled, dip a soft brush in the water and brush lightly. Then dip the entire shade up and down in the soapy solution a number of times.

THIRD: After removing shade from soapy water, immediately rinse thoroughly in clear warm water (which has been prepared beforehand) by dipping up and down. Large tubs such as basement laundry tubs or bathtubs are ideal for shade washing.

FOURTH: Dry by hanging shade from clothes line by means of cord. Fast drying is essential to prevent the metal frame from rusting. Do not hang in sunshine or near artificial heat. Wind blowing through the shade will dry it quickly and evenly.

Milton C. Waltes, Manager of the Social Security Board field office, located at 178 E. 154th St., Harvey, Ill., today urged all people who have social security account number cards to read the instructions printed on the back of the card. Waltes pointed out that these instructions are as follows:

1. Separate the two parts of the social security card.

2. Carry the top part on your person or leave it at home in a safe place.

3. Put the lower part in a safe place where it can easily be reached. This lower part should not be carried on your person as you may lose it.

4. If you lose the top part of your social security card, take the lower portion to any Social Security Board field office where a duplicate card will be issued at once.

5. If both parts of your social security card are lost, you may not be able to get a duplicate social security card at once but you should immediately apply for one.

Farmers need a program which assures them a minimum of necessary experienced manpower and machinery, reasonable protection in the market place, and assurance that such a program will not be subject to change periodically at the will of a group of professional planners, price manipulators or price controllers, Smith said.

Periodic jockeying and manipulation of plans and policies in Washington that have such a direct effect upon the price levels of farm commodities must be stopped, Smith added. Farmers have no objection to reasonable price ceilings, but they want them invoked in a reasonable and practical way and they want to know that rules will not be changed in the middle of the game. Tank Car Substitute

A method for converting ordinary box cars to carry liquid cargoes, such as gasoline, oil, etc., has been offered by a Chicago inventor, Mark J. Fields, as a solution to the tank car shortage.

Fields' invention was demonstrated in the Santa Fe Railway's yards in Chicago before a group of railroad and government officials, who expressed optimism over the idea.

His box car-to-tank car conversion scheme consists of dividing an ordinary box car into four compartments by means of wooden bulkheads. In each compartment, a canvas container, treated on the inside with a DuPont rubber synthetic, Faraprene, is suspended by means of a series of pulleys and ropes. Each tank has a 4-inch intake and a 4-inch outlet and may be filled and emptied simultaneously, which makes for speedy handling.

Each of the canvas bags has a capacity of 2,500 gallons of liquid or a total of 10,000 gallons for the four containers. This is equal to the capacity of an ordinary tank car. The car in which the test was made was an 80,000-pound capacity car.

Among those attending the demonstration were O. L. Gray, assistant to the operating vice president, and E. E. Chapman, mechanical assistant, both of the Santa Fe.

What to Grow in 1943

SOME INFORMATION ON FLAXSEED PRODUCTION IN ILLINOIS AS GIVEN BY THE AGRICULTURE EXPERIMENT STATION AT URBANA.

TIME OF SEEDING—

Seed early for best results.

RATE OF SEEDING—

45 to 56 pounds per acre.

DEPTH OF SEEDING—

1/2 to 1 inch deep.

ALFALFA—

Flax makes an excellent nurse crop for Alfalfa.

IS FLAX HARD ON THE LAND?

Below is a chart comparing Flax with other Grain crops.

CROP	Yield Fertilizing Constituents in Lbs. per Acre
	Per Acre	Bus.	Ni.	Phos.	Pot.	Mag.
Flaxseed	11.3	20.8	3.6	5.1	1.1	1.7
Corn	67.9	68.5	10.3	12.9	.7	4.9
Oats	66.4	41.6	7.7	10.2	1.7	2.5
Sp. Wheat	20.7	27.3	5.2	5.3	.5	1.9
Soy Beans	30.9	103.3	12.8	35.4	3.7	5.6
Barley	40.2	35.5	7.1	9.1	1.0	2.3
Rye	31.6	33.1	6.5	8.7	.7	1.8

According to the above data, flax removed less nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and magnesium than any other grain crop. Soy beans removed about five times as much as flaxseed.

Grow a crop you can harvest in the summer, one that is easy on the land, and one that you can sell for cash at the crushers at Chicago Heights. Field-run flaxseed sold for about $2.50 per bushel (56 lbs.) this season.

We have a good supply of home-grown Bison Flaxseed on hand which yielded about 20 bushels per acre.

THE top word and the most misused word and what should be the word "best." This is a word that covers more ground than we can follow, using an airplane and a telescope.

By this we mean such phrases as "the best team"—"the best passer"—"the best receiver"—"the best kicker"—"the best line"—referring here to football. For example, some days ago Major Jablonski, one of the leading Army coaches, rated Angelo Bertelli of Notre Dame as "the best passer."

Lou Little naturally countered with Paul Governali of Columbia. Both are fine passers. But what about Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia or Eddie Prokop of Georgia Tech? Or Glenn Dobbs of Tulsa? They all work under different conditions, with varying support, through widely different schedules.

Of the lot, Governali, Columbia's scribe, has the hardest handicap to overcome so far as team protection is concerned. Most of the better passers work on teams that also can run. Columbia's only scoring passage is through the air, and every opponent knows it.

The Top Man

Football's three best passers are Sammy Baugh, Cecil Isbell and Sid Luckman. You can have them in any order so long as Baugh is No. 1.

Taking a crack at our earlier angle about the word "best," football has never known a pass receiver close to Don Hutson. Hutson has grapping hooks for hands and the speed of a cheetah. He also has a deceptive method of faking the enemy out of position.

Baugh is an amazing athlete. "I weighed 180 pounds when I played with Texas Christian several years ago," he told me recently. "I still weigh exactly 180 pounds. I don't figure I've changed as much as two pounds in any recent year."

I can recall few athletes who have kept in such fine physical shape for so long a time.

Back to the Collegians

How many would run far and pass well against such teams as Minnesota, Alabama, Wisconsin, Ohio State, Georgia, Georgia Tech or Notre Dame?

For example, Wisconsin has two of the star backs of the year, but look at that Badger schedule! It included Notre Dame, Missouri, Great Lakes, Purdue, Marquette, Northwestern, Ohio State, Iowa and Minnesota. How many new records could the best of backs set up against this opposition?

The caliber and quality of opposing teams too often is overlooked. And there is many a potential star who is also overlooked on some of the poorer teams, with which he has little chance to operate.

Hard to Compare

It takes no starchy-eyed expert to announce that Boston College and Alabama have two of the country's greatest lines, including depth of material. They can't be stormed along the ground—just too many big, fast men.

But it is harder to compare such passers as Governali, Sinkwich, Prokop, Dobbs and others. Governali hasn't anything like the manpower support the others have. There is a large difference between working or playing with Columbia and playing with Georgia or Notre Dame.

A good running game can be a big help to any passing game. After all, Baugh has Dick Todd, and you may recall the time he had Cliff Battles—two of the best runners working with a great passer. And Luckman has had some of the greatest backs in football history with the Chicago Bears—Standlee, McAfee, Osmanski, Nolting and others. Sinkwich has his own running ability to call on in addition to other fast backs. Bertelli has all the running help he needs.

The best single exhibition I've seen this year came from Sinkwich in his two-touchdown march against Alabama's strong defense—something like 11 passes completed out of 13 tossed in that final period.

Apparently no set of adverse figures ever can prove to the racing bettor that he is up against a bit more than he can digest.

For example, the case of Whirlaway serves our point. Long Tail is the biggest money winner of all time. He has had an amazing record of running and winning. Yet, if someone had bet $5 on Whirlaway in every race of his career, said bettor would be behind financially.

The answer is that Whirlaway has lost too many races when he was an odds-on choice.

After his first few races there was little chance to make any money backing Man o' War. There were times when he was 1-to-100 or 1-to-30.

PEAKING OF SPORTS

By Bob Zuppke
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

WHEN a fighting football team from the University of Illinois defeated Minnesota's Golden Gophers early this year, the pre-season estimates were thrown in the wastebasket. When twice-defeated Purdue edged out Northwestern, the wastebasket was burned.

Not since the late 1920s had the Midwest witnessed such a close race for the Western conference title. Teams found out that to be named a favorite in the press was the virtual kiss of death. Wisconsin knocked Ohio State out of the Big Nine lead and the nation's number one place. The latter spot was promptly filled by Georgia. Iowa then proceeded to topple Wisconsin from the pinnacle and from among the country's leading undefeated teams while Indiana rose to peak form to drop favored Minnesota.

The renaissance of Illinois as a power in Midwest football came as an exceedingly pleasant surprise to followers of Big Nine football fortunes. Oldtimers remember wistfully the glory days of the Fighting Illini. Particularly do they remember the historic battles of the Illinois-Ohio State series.

Probably the two most famous games of the series were played in 1919 and 1920. In 1919 at Columbus the Illini were on their own 20-yard line with the score 7-6 against them and only a few minutes left, when Larry Walquist completed three passes to Chuck Carney. All-America end, which put the ball on the Buckeye 20. Bob Fletcher place-kicked a field goal to give the Illini victory and the championship by a 9-7 score.

A Close One

Next year, on the Illinois field, the game was still scoreless as the pistol sounded but Workman's pass to "Truck" Meyers was in the air for him to catch and score the touchdown that won the game (and championship) for the Buckeyes.

Illinois first became acquainted with the immortal Chic Harley in 1916. The Illini were leading 6-0 in the closing minutes of play when Harley broke free for a touchdown, calmly changed his shoe and place-kicked a goal.

Illinois' victory in 1934 uncovered Bob Zuppke's famous "flying trapeze." In this delightful little number everyone on the field except the officials and the waterboys handled the ball. Illinois deserved to win by the final 14-13 score.

Red Grange played an important part as a sophomore in the 1923 game. He scored one touchdown that made up the majority of the 9 points by which the Illini claimed victory. He was injured and did not play in 1924 when Illinois won. In 1925 Grange played his last college game at Columbus, contributing more than his share to a 14-9 victory.

Boxing Industry

Takes It on Chin

The boxing industry, less concerned than other sports by the transportation problem, is faced with a talent loss that likely will result in the doom of all big scale operations.

While exact figures are not available, it is probable that on a per capita basis boxing has sent more men into the armed services than any other branch of athletics.

The National Boxing association recently summarized the induction or enlistment of 18 champions and contenders. Hundreds of unranked fighters are in the army or navy and increasing numbers are seeking work in war plants.

Four world champions are in the service—Sergt. Joe Louis, heavyweight; Gus Lesnevich, light heavyweight; Tony Zale, middleweight; and Fred Cochrane, welterweight.

Contenders in service represent five of the eight standard divisions:

The Roster

Heavyweight, Corp. Billy Conn, Melio Bettina and Pat Valentino; light heavyweight, Billy Soose, Tommy Tucker and Ken Overlin; middleweight, George Abrams, Tony Martin, Coley Welsh, Fred Apostoli and Steve Belloise; welterweight, Marty Servo and Jackie Wilson; featherweight, Mike Raffa. Also gone is Bob Pastor, heavyweight who retired to join the marines.

Boxing has been in rather a bad way for the past several years. Joe Louis outranked his heavyweight contemporaries so far that interest in that division reached an all-time low. Most of the other divisions were in a chaotic condition.

Now, with the army and navy drawing from its ranks, the cauliflower industry must adjust itself to a changed situation. The wild, unhampered promotion of past big time bouts is doomed for the duration. Fights will be less of a spectacle, with little-known brawlers earning no more than ham and eggs.

Typewriter Monologue:

The news from Africa gave Americans the first hip-hip-hooray feeling of the war, coming as it did after the British had sent the Fascist and Nazi armies staggering across the desert. . . . There were loud cheers for Midway, and the triumphs in the Solomons were hailed. But it's more inspiring when the senior partners of the Axis are getting the slapping. . . . Even a neutral can cheer when a Nazi is having his schnozzola rubbed in the sand. There's something very beautiful about one of those bragging squareheads biting the dust. They yell uncle so sincerely. . . . If you enjoy nervous Nazis, tune in on the Berlin short wavers and listen to them pretty up the African disasters. Their broadcasters sound like lush-rollers in police court—explaining how the victim's wallet gave them such a surprise when they found it in their hands.

Hollywood is panicked by the wage ceiling, limiting the yearly pay check to 25 Gs net. The biggies can collect $67,000, which is the legal 25 plus tax, but everything over stays in the boss' hip pocket. . . . It calls for adroit handling. If an actor keeps on working, he is toiling for free. If he lays off he runs the risk of being forgotten by the fans. . . . Biggest fear of all is it may wreck the star system. If the studios get into the habit of paying actors wages that keep them within the legal limit, they might get to like it and keep it up after the limit is off. . . . Agents are scared stiff. They get 10 per cent of a client's earnings. As one of them put it: "Ten per cent of zero is zero," but there are those who think that's a fair wage for agents.

The OWI can't be seeing many "B" movies, judging from its advice to pulp fictionists to make their villains Japs. . . . Every week the cinema offers a Nipponese Nasty for slugging purposes. That makes him a pushover heavy. . . . It's no surprise to anybody (and no drama at all) when Basil Beautiful clips the Japs in the teeth and tells him that squares Bataan. It leaves you wanting a lot. . . . The place to make the Japs the heavies is in the newsreels, especially if it also shows the heroes getting hunk. We don't want to just pretend we're hurting them. It's much better if it's the McCoy. Oh, ever and ever so much.

A Frenchman, who lived in England for many years, turned on it with written attacks after France was licked. . . . When Winston Churchill heard about it, he said: "We thought we had a friend—we only had a client."

The Magazines: Eugene Tillinger, in Pic, relates that there is a caste system among the Berlin Murderers' Set. Frau Himmeler, he reports, gets snooted by the wives of Goebbels, Goering, et al, because her husband, Mr. Gestapo, butchers people for a salary, while others do it for medals. . . . John Erskine, in the American Mercury, grieves that American poetry is namby-pamby because the poets "have forgotten how to curse." . . . Mebbe that's because they keep their cussin' for their letters to critics. . . . I. F. Stone's pungent pieces in The Nation are waker-uppers. . . . Look's literary snapshot of Ambassador Winant points out that he looks like Lincoln. But more important—he thinks like him. . . . Kyle Crichton had a success story on actress Marjorie Reynolds. He reports she earned $600 a week in horse-operas but got a break in the films at $250 per week. . . . Huh?

Typewriter Ribbons: H. L. Mencken: Conscience: An inner voice that warns us somebody is looking. . . . Anon: He was a cashier who wished to be one of the 400 but now is only No. 387. . . . S. Butler: She gave the impression that her mind was wearing trousers. . . . Christopher Hale: Don't slam your mind in my face. . . . Jean Tennyson: The only ambition in life a paper napkin has is to get down off a diner's lap and play on the floor. . . . Anon: The snow is beautiful if you are watching the other fellow shovel it. . . . Goethe: One cannot always be a hero, but one can always be a man. . . . H. Shriner: Henry Kaiser—Old Man Riveter. . . . A. P. Herbert: To me, the conception of two living together for 25 years, without a cross word is absurd, and suggests a lack of spirit only to be admired in sheep. Where there is spirit there must be sparks.

Hero Bulkeley saw "Sons of Fun" the other night and howled at it. Later he asked Olsen & Johnson: "How can you stand it night after night—all that noise and shooting?" . . . Kenneth Miller's suggested slogan for Loudmouths: "Loose Schmooze Can Cook Your Goose!" . . . Gracie Fields is a click at the Wedgwood Room at the Waldorf. Gets all the stuffed shirts to sing "Always Be an England" and "God Bless America" . . . Ginny Simms has told RKO she'll do no more B films.

FAMOUS ALL-BRAN MUFFINS. EASY TO MAKE. DELICIOUS!

They really are the most delicious muffins that ever melted a pat of butter! Made with crisp, toast-like shreds of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they have a texture and flavor that have made them famous all over America.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN MUFFINS
2 tablespoons 3/4 cup milk
shortening 1 cup flour
1/4 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg 2 1/2 teaspoons
1 cup All-Bran baking powder
Cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2 1/4 inches in diameter.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

In the modern automobile there are 32.5 pounds of rubber in addition to that used in tires and tubes.
Last summer's national scrap rubber drive brought out 6.87 pounds per capita. Even this gratifying amount represented only a scraping of the surface of the scrap littering the backyards, cellars and attics of the country.
There are some 3,065,000 miles of roads in the United States of which 40% are of the surfaced highway type. More improved roads than any other country in the world.
There are more than 10 motor vehicles for each mile of highway in the United States. Pre-war rationing Sunday made this ratio seem like 10 cars to each 100 feet of road.
In 1940 it was estimated that the market value of passenger cars in the U.S. was $7,209,000,000; trucks had a value of $1,165,000,000.

WOMEN AT WAR

Margaret

Margaret turned off the humming vacuum cleaner, and straightened the slipcovers of the armchair and the daybed that she had pushed up to go over the rug. Then she stood quite still in the doorway and looked at the small bedroom with its southern exposure. It was as neat and impersonal as a pin. It might never have been lived in. The door stood open on the clean, bare closet. There was not a pennant, not a team picture, not even so much as an old Arithmetic book left to show whose room it had once been.

Margaret stared at the walls, the furniture, and deeply, slowly, she realized that no matter what lodgers with their own trinkets and pictures might occupy it, she would always see it the old way. It was the old way that she saw it now. A pair of hard-worn gray pants lay on the floor where they had been dropped. Three baseball bats were stacked with a fishing rod in the corner. A battered red cap with a letter on it lay on the bed. And through the bed, as though it were transparent, Margaret saw another bed, smaller, and with high slatted sides.

She put the vacuum cleaner away and went down to her desk in the sitting-room. She took the fifteen dollars rent that the new lodger had paid that morning in advance for the room, and added to it, from her purse, three dollars and seventy-five cents more. Then she drew out a sheet of paper and began to write on it, slowly, gravely.

"To buy a bond to help train a young man to replace Don, Jr.—killed on June 6th in the Battle of Midway."

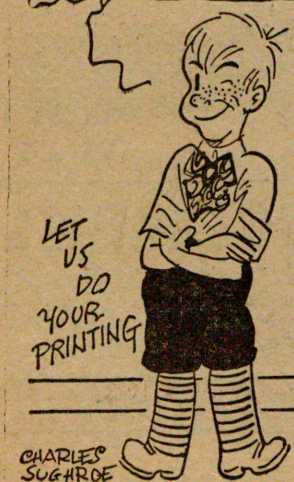

(Letter from an actual communication in the files of the Treasury Department.)

Help our boys. Make certain the wage earner of the family joins a payroll savings plan and tops that 10% by New Year's!

LET US DO YOUR PRINTING

CHARLES SUGARDE

This man is not dead. He is just sleeping. And sleeping a little more soundly, perhaps, because there are still many Americans who are not putting at least 10% of their pay into War Bonds on a regular Payroll Savings Plan. How about you joining a lot of other fellows in giving the little paperhanger a rude awakening? How about you signing up with a Payroll Savings Plan today . . . to the tune of not 6%, or 7% or 8%, but 10% and more if you can? LET'S TOP THAT 10% BY NEW YEAR'S.

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO:

1. If you are . . .
1. Already investing 10% of your pay in War Bonds through the Payroll

Savings Plan—boost that 10% if you can.

2. Working in a plant where the Plan is installed, but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
3. Working in a plant where the Payroll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman, or plant manager—and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.
4. Unable to get in on the Payroll Savings Plan for any reason, go to your local bank, or wherever Bonds are sold. They will be glad to help you start a Plan of your own.

"TOP THAT 10% BY NEW YEAR'S!"

ORLAND 4H NEWS

The 4H Achievement meeting was held at the Maue school November 21 and many parents and friends were present to witness a demonstration of the Orland 4H Club work.

The meeting started with the Flag salute. In the business meeting the regular procedures were carried on. Robert Wakeland gave a speech on How to Raise Potatoes. Bert McKean gave a talk on his project. Donald Yunker, the president, gave a report on the amount of salvage material collected by the club. Larry Smith reported on how many ribbons the club received at the County Fair, and their placing. Richard Marti and Raymond Bernard gave a demonstration on the correct way to salute the flag. Norman Yunker talked on what nine years of 4H meant to him.

Mr. Erickson congratulated the Orland 4H judging team for winning first place in the Black and White judging contest at Kankakee.

Mr. Phil gave a talk on the parents' viewpoint of the 4H.

Mr. Glover then presented the awards for this year's work. He also showed some slides, illustrating the various 4H work in the County.

A quintet of boys sang and Richard Phil played a harmonica solo.

At the close of the meeting, parents and visitors enjoyed sandwiches, cake and ice cream.

ORLAND LEGION AUX. OPENS WAR BOND SALE DRIVE

As part of the drive for the sale of War Savings Stamps which is being conducted all this week throughout the entire State, Friday, Nov. 27 has been designated as American Legion Auxiliary Day. On this day the Orland Park Auxiliary will maintain booths in the Creer, Loebe and Schmadeke stores at which every person in the community is expected to purchase at least one War Savings Stamp. This will operate similarly to a tag day and each person purchasing a War Savings Stamp will be given a tag denoting that such purchase has been made. The purpose of this particular drive is to bring the November total of the State for Stamp sales up to or over the allotted quota. This particular day will be dedicated to the ladies. The WAACS, the WAVES and all those patriotic women throughout our State who are doing their share in the war effort, in the home, the defense industries, the civilian defense and the various government auxiliary agencies.

Every person should buy at least one stamp, or better still take their change in war stamps. Wear your tag and proudly display the fact that you have done your share in this drive.
